
about cutting the cane

Posted by derekreidpm - 2009/10/30 17:48

mine is in a container,
what would be the best time to cut?
and should i repot it first?

=====

Re:about cutting the cane

Posted by Kristy - 2009/10/31 02:34

Hi Derek,

I gather you mean it is in a pot. Where do you live? If you are in Australia now is the time to cut it. Once the night time temps have reached 16 degrees C it is a good time.

You don't need to re-pot it, that isn't necessary, unless it is root bound. It will happily re-shoot. Don't forget to pot up the cane you cut off to make even more plants.

=====

Re:about cutting the cane

Posted by OLLIE IN HAWAII - 2009/11/02 08:00

kristy is there any tricks to cutting according to what the moon is doing? something with the saps in it being up or down ? giving you a better strike rate? have you herd that?

=====

Re:about cutting the cane

Posted by Kristy - 2009/11/02 16:00

HA! Funny you ask that Ollie, I have been working on an article for the next issue of the magazine about gardening by the moon.

Keep your eyes peeled!!

=====