

---

Growing from cuttings

Posted by The White Hart - 2009/09/09 07:13

---

Hi can anyone tell me if very mature Australis cuttings take root? Is there a particular procedure? At the mo Planted in black soil Upper Hunter NSW. Cheers WH

=====

Re:Growing from cuttings

Posted by OLLIE - 2009/09/28 04:47

---

I BELIVE SO! I LIKE TO CUT ON AN ANGLE TRIM MOST LEAVES PUT IN WATER FOR 24HR. AND PLANT ;)

=====

Re:Growing from cuttings

Posted by Kristy - 2009/09/30 13:42

---

Hi The White Hart,

Australis is very touchy. You can cut the top off and it will re-shoot and grow without a problem. To try and propagate from the top you have cut off is almost impossible. The best way to propagate from Australis is from the new shoots that grow from the base. Check out our FAQ section for more info on this.

Ollie,

Propagating from cane is only able to be done in our fruticosa (Ti) cultivars, not the Australis varieties.

=====

Re:Growing from cuttings

Posted by Ollie - 2009/10/10 23:48

---

O COOL DID NOT KNOW THAT THANKS!

=====

Re:Growing from cuttings

Posted by Kristy - 2009/10/16 14:21

---

Your most welcome... :) )

=====